A necklace made of interlocking metal rings and nuts, forming a U-shape. The necklace is composed of two parallel strands of metal rings, with nuts interlocking between the strands. The metal has a warm, golden-brown patina. The necklace is laid out in a large, open U-shape against a plain white background.

VON KOTTWITZ

Nina Stotler officially founded VonKottwitz Jewelry in 2004, under her mother's family name. Spending time in Berlin growing up, she was influenced by her surroundings, in particular the Bauhaus movement and its innovative, restrained aesthetic. Ms. Stotler immediately gravitated towards working with metal while studying sculpture at Sarah Lawrence College, eventually creating customized jewelry for herself and friends. Crafting each VonKottwitz piece by hand in her Brooklyn studio, Stotler's aim is to create eye-catching adornment that will garner attention, but remain unique to the wearer.

Jason Dickerson partnered with Nina Stotler and VonKottwitz Jewelry in 2008 as creative director. Bringing a wealth of experience in the industry as a branding manager, art director and graphic designer, he has evolved the aesthetic of VonKottwitz, further solidifying the signature VonKottwitz look. Mr. Dickerson has applied his sleek, seductive and modern point of view to projects with numerous fashion companies and magazines.
